Hate Crime Statistics

Foreword

The American Psychological Association says of hate crime "... not only is it an attack on one's physical self, but it is also an attack on one's very identity." Attacks upon individuals because of a difference in how they look, pray, or behave have long been a part of human history. It is only recently, however, that our society has given it a name and decided to monitor it, study it, and legislate against it. As a result, law enforcement has been given the task of identifying and responding to bias-motivated crime. In order to discharge this duty, the criminal justice community must have adequate information about the nature and prevalence of hate crime. The Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program has been a primary source of crime statistics for the use of law enforcement since the Program's establishment in 1929. When the Hate Crimes Statistics Act of 1990 was passed, the UCR Program was the logical choice to become a clearinghouse for the collection and sharing of data regarding these distinct crimes. Since 1991, the Program has compiled and published statistics on offenses determined by law enforcement to have been driven by bias against race, religion, ethnicity, sexual orientation, and since 1994, disability. This edition of Hate Crime Statistics is the latest presentation in this series aimed at better equipping law enforcement to handle the complex and difficult challenge of dealing with hate crime.

Introduction

When Congress passed the Hate Crime Statistics Act of 1990, lawmakers mandated the collection of information regarding crimes motivated by a bias against race, religion, sexual orientation, and/or ethnicity/national origin. The Attorney General designated the FBI to satisfy that requirement. With the cooperation and assistance of many local and state law enforcement agencies familiar with the investigation of hate crimes and the collection of related information, the UCR Program created a data collection system to comply with the congressional mandate. The UCR first published information regarding hate crime data collection in Hate Crime Statistics, 1990: A Resource Book, a compilation of hate crime data reported by 11 states that had collected them under state authority in 1990 and were willing to participate. After the national Program implemented a uniform method of data collection, the inaugural edition of Hate Crime Statistics presented data reported by participating law enforcement agencies throughout the Nation in 1992.

The Violent Crime and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 amended the Hate Crime Statistics Act to include bias against disabilities. The FBI started gathering data for the additional bias motivation on January 1, 1997. Further, the Church Arson Prevention Act, which was signed into law in July 1996, removed the sunset clause from the original statute and indefinitely extended the mandate, hence making hate crime data collection a permanent part of the UCR Program.

Collection Design

The hate crime data collection program was designed to capture information about the types of bias that motivate a crime, the nature of the offense, and some attributes of the victims and offenders. In creating the program, developers considered many factors and recognized that hate crimes are not separate, distinct crimes. Instead, hate crimes were, and continue to be, traditional offenses motivated by the offender's bias. For example, an offender may commit an assault because of a bias he or she has against the victim's race, religion, sexual orientation, ethnicity or national origin, or disability. Therefore, it was not necessary to create new crime categories; hate crime data could be obtained by collecting additional information about crimes currently being reported to the UCR Program.

Law enforcement's support and participation are vital in moving the hate crime data collection effort from concept to reality. Those organizations that have endorsed the UCR Program's hate crime program include the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the National Sheriffs' Association, the former UCR Data Providers Advisory Policy Board (which is now part of the Criminal Justice Information Services Advisory Policy Board), the International Association of Directors of Law Enforcement Standards and Training, and the Association of State Uniform Crime Reporting Programs. In addition to this support, law enforcement's commitment to participate by identifying and reporting hate crimes is crucial to the national Program's success.

Participation

During 2002, more than 17,000 law enforcement agencies participated in the national UCR Program. Of that total, 12,073 agencies in 49 states and the District of Columbia, representing 247 million inhabitants or 85.7 percent of the Nation's population, participated in the hate crime program.

Agencies reporting data through Summary or the National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS) submit hate crime data to the FBI either through state UCR Programs or directly (agencies in non-Program states). (A directory of state UCR Programs is available in the Appendix of this publication.) The table on the following page presents the number of law enforcement agencies participating in UCR and hate crime reporting by population group and the population covered collectively by those agencies within the group.

Valid information is critical to law enforcement in developing effective measures to combat bias-motivated crime. By participating in the hate crime data collection program, law enforcement agencies are raising the Nation's awareness of bias-motivated crimes.

Methodology

The FBI collects hate crime data regarding criminal offenses committed against persons, property, or society that are motivated, in whole or in part, by the offender's bias against a race, religion, disability, sexual orientation, or ethnicity/national origin. Because motivation is subjective, it is difficult to know with certainty whether a crime was the result of the offender's bias. Law enforcement investigation is crucial because it must reveal sufficient evidence to lead a reasonable and prudent person to conclude that the offender's actions were motivated, in whole or in part, by his or her bias. Only then should law enforcement report an incident as a hate crime.

Data Collection

Because hate crimes are traditional offenses motivated by the offender's bias, law enforcement needs only to capture additional information about 11 select offenses already being reported to the UCR Program to collect hate crime data: murder and nonnegligent manslaughter, forcible rape, aggravated assault, simple assault, and intimidation (crimes against persons) and robbery, burglary, larceny-theft, motor vehicle theft, arson, and destruction/damage/vandalism (crimes against property). Furthermore, the offense classification other and the crime category crimes against society include 35 Group A Offenses (not listed) that are captured in NIBRS, which also collects the previously mentioned 11 offense categories. (The Uniform Crime Reporting Handbook, NIBRS edition, provides an explanation of all 46 Group A Offenses.)

A hate crime incident can involve more than one offense, victim, and/or offender. In submitting data to the national UCR Program, law enforcement scores one offense for each victim of a crime against a person. When submitting a crime against property, however, law enforcement scores one offense for each distinct incident, regardless of the number of victims. Likewise, law enforcement agencies submitting data through NIBRS score one offense for each distinct incident (not victim) of a crime against society.

Data Reporting

Hate crime data are reported by agencies submitting data through UCR Summary reporting or via the NIBRS. Agencies using summary reporting and some agencies reporting via NIBRS use two standard forms to collect and report data: the Hate Crime Incident Report and the Quarterly Hate Crime Report. These forms supply the national UCR Program with information about each hate crime incident including the offense classification and its respective bias motivation, the number and type of victims, the location of the incident, the number of suspected offenders, and the suspected offender's race.

During a calendar quarter, law enforcement agencies submit a Hate Crime Incident Report for each bias-motivated incident. At the end of each calendar quarter, reporting agencies submit a Quarterly Hate Crime Report, which includes the total number of incidents reported for the quarter and deletes any previously reported incidents that were, through subsequent investigation, determined not to be bias motivated. Additionally, law enforcement agencies submit Quarterly Hate Crime Reports to report zero hate crime incidents; that is, no hate crime incidents occurred in their jurisdiction that quarter.

Most agencies reporting data electronically to the national UCR Program via NIBRS use a data element within their reporting software that indicates a hate crime. Because the data element applies to all 46 of the Group A Offenses, it allows agencies to indicate whether any of the 35 additional offenses were bias motivated. Furthermore, these agencies can report considerably more information about the hate crime incident since NIBRS is an incident-based, comprehensive data collection system.

Data Publication

To be included in this publication, law enforcement agencies must have submitted data for at least 1 month of the calendar year. The published data, therefore, do not necessarily represent reports from each participating agency for 12 months or 4 quarters. Section II of this publication furnishes individual state and agency information, including the number of quarters for which the agency reported data to the national Program.

Notes:

1. When examining the data contained in this report, data users should be aware that the first line following the title of each table presents in boldface type that table's unit of count, i.e., incident, offense, victim, known offender.
2. It is incumbent upon all data users to become as well educated as possible about how to understand and quantify the nature and extent of hate crime in the United States and in any of the more than 12,000 jurisdictions from which agencies contribute data to the UCR hate crime program. Valid assessments are possible only with careful study and analysis of the various unique conditions affecting each local law enforcement jurisdiction. Until data users examine all the variables that affect crime in a town, city, county, state, region, or college or university, they can make no meaningful comparisons. The article "Crime Factors" in the beginning of each edition of Crime in the United States (accessible at the FBI's Internet site at <www.fbi.gov>) presents a comprehensive discussion of the many factors that affect crime in a jurisdiction.

Section I—Hate Crime Statistics

Incidents and Offenses

A total of 12,073 law enforcement agencies reported 7,462 hate crime incidents in 2002. The majority of these, 7,459, were single-bias incidents; that is, all the offenses within each incident resulted from one type of bias. The 3 remaining incidents were classified as multiple-bias, meaning that those incidents involved 2 or more offense types motivated by 2 or more biases. (See Table 1.)

Racial bias accounted for 48.8 percent of the single-bias incidents. Religious bias motivated 19.1 percent of incidents, sexual-orientation bias provoked 16.7 percent, and bias against an ethnicity or national origin caused 14.8 percent. Bias against a physical or mental disability was the basis for 0.6 percent of the single-bias incidents. (Based on Table 1.)

Within the 7,462 hate crime incidents reported during 2002, law enforcement identified 7,459 single-bias incidents involving 8,825 offenses. Within the 3 multiple-bias incidents, they identified 7 offenses. (See Table 1.) The UCR hate crime program assigns all bias-motivated offenses to one of three categories: crimes against persons, crimes against property, and crimes against society. (See Methodology.) For 2002, crimes against persons made up 67.5 percent of the identified offenses, and crimes against property accounted for 32.0 percent. The remainder (0.6 percent) were crimes against society. (Based on Table 2.)

By offense type, intimidation was the most often reported offense, accounting for 35.2 percent of the total bias-motivated offenses. Destruction/damage/vandalism accounted for 26.6 percent of the total reported offenses; simple assault, 20.3 percent; and aggravated assault, 11.7 percent. The remaining offenses collectively made up 6.3 percent of the total. (Based on Table 2.)

Intimidation was also the most frequently reported of the crimes against persons, accounting for 52.1 percent of that total. Of reported crimes against property, 83.1 percent of the offenses involved destruction/damage/vandalism. (Based on Table 2.)

Nearly half (49.8 percent) of the 8,825 single-bias offenses reported for 2002 were racially motivated. Religious bias was the instigation for 17.9 percent of the offenses, sexual-orientation bias was the motivation for 16.6 percent, and ethnicity/national origin bias was the cause of 15.2 percent. Bias against a physical or mental disability was the source of less than 1 percent of the offenses within single-bias incidents—0.5 percent. (Based on Table 1.)

A review of the 4,393 offenses motivated by racial bias showed that 67.5 percent resulted from an anti-black bias, 20.2 percent resulted from an anti-white bias, and 6.1 percent resulted from bias against Asians or Pacific Islanders. The data further revealed that 4.6 percent of the offenses were committed against groups comprised of varying races (anti-multiple races, group); 1.5 percent targeted American Indians or Alaskan Natives. (Based on Table 1.)

Anti-Jewish bias accounted for 65.9 percent of the 1,576 reported offenses rooted in religious bias. Anti-Islamic bias made up 10.8 percent of these types of offenses, and bias against other, unspecified religious groups (anti-other religion) made up 13.8 percent. Of the remainder, 3.7 percent of the offenses were anti-Catholic, 3.6 percent were anti-Protestant, 2.0 percent were against groups made up of multiple religions (anti-multiple religions, group), and 0.2 percent were anti-atheism or anti-agnosticism. (Based on Table 1.)

The 2002 data included reports of 1,464 offenses caused by a sexual-orientation bias. Of these, male homosexuals were the targets of 65.4 percent of the attacks. Law enforcement attributed the remaining offenses to anti-homosexual bias, 17.7 percent; anti-female homosexual bias, 14.1 percent; anti-heterosexual bias, 1.8 percent; and anti-bisexual bias, 1.0 percent. (Based on Table 1.)

A review of the 1,345 offenses that investigators determined were the result of an ethnicity or national origin bias indicated that 44.7 percent were associated with an anti-Hispanic prejudice. Anti-other ethnicity/national origin bias accounted for 55.3 percent of these offenses. (Based on Table 1.)

Law enforcement reported 47 offenses motivated by a disability bias and attributed more than half of those (57.4 percent) to a mental disability bias. Bias against physical disabilities made up the remainder. (Based on Table 1.)

A review of the 2002 data by offense type and bias motivation revealed 11 hate motivated homicides. Law enforcement attributed 4 of the murders to racial prejudice, 4 to sexual-orientation bias, 2 to a bias against the victim's ethnicity or national origin, and 1 to a bias against the victim's religious preference. (See Table 4.)

Investigators determined that 8 forcible rapes were motivated by bias during 2002. Three forcible rapes resulted from a sexual-orientation bias, 2 from an ethnicity or national origin bias; 2 from a racial bias; and 1 from a disability bias. (See Table 4.)

Officers identified bias as a motivation for 130 robberies in single-bias incidents; 48 stemmed from a racial bias, 43 from a sexual-orientation bias, 35 from an ethnicity or national origin bias, and 4 from a religious bias. (See Table 4.)

Arson investigations led to hate crime reports of 38 offenses in 2002. Of these, officials determined that 16 were the result of a racial bias, 13 were associated with a religious bias, 6 with a sexual-orientation bias, and 3 with an ethnicity or national origin bias. (See Table 4.)

Victims

In the context of hate crime data collection, the term victim refers to a person, business, institution, or society as a whole, unless otherwise specified.

By Bias Motivation

During 2002, there were 9,222 victims associated with 8,832 hate crime offenses. A study of victim data for single-bias hate crimes showed that racial bias motivated the crimes against nearly half—49.7 percent—of all the victims. Offenders committed crimes against 18.0 percent of hate crime victims because of religious bias, 16.4 percent due to sexual-orientation bias, 15.3 percent because of ethnicity or national origin bias, and 0.5 percent due to disability bias. There were 11 victims of the 3 multiple-bias hate crime incidents in 2002. (Based on Table 1.)

Among the 4,580 victims of racially bias-motivated offenses, 67.2 percent were victims of anti-black bias, 19.9 percent of anti-white bias, 6.1 percent of anti-Asian or anti-Pacific Islander bias, and 1.6 percent were victims of anti-American Indian or anti-Alaskan Native bias. The remaining 5.3 percent of victims of racially bias-motivated offenses resulted from bias directed at groups composed of individuals of different races. (Based on Table 1.)

Victims of anti-Jewish bias accounted for 65.3 percent of the 1,659 victims of religious bias offenses. Anti-Islamic bias motivated the crimes against 10.5 percent of those victims, anti-Catholic bias contributed to 4.3 percent, anti-Protestant bias accounted for 3.5 percent, and anti-Atheism or anti-Agnosticism, etc. bias contributed to

0.2 percent. Biases against members of other religious groups and those directed at groups made up of individuals from multiple religious faiths accounted for 14.3 percent and 1.9 percent of the victims, respectively. (Based on Table 1.)

Examination of the data for the 1,513 victims of crimes motivated by sexual-orientation bias revealed that 65.0 percent were victims of anti-male homosexual bias, 17.6 percent were targets of anti-homosexual bias (male and female), 14.6 percent were victims of anti-female homosexual bias, 1.7 percent of anti-heterosexual bias, and 1.0 percent of anti-bisexual bias. (Based on Table 1.)

Of the 1,409 victims of ethnicity/national origin bias in 2002, 45.4 percent were victims of anti-Hispanic bias, and 54.6 percent were victims of a bias against other ethnicities or national origins. (Based on Table 1.)

Disability bias motivated the hate crimes against 50 victims. Sixty percent (30 victims) were targets of anti-mental disability bias and 40.0 percent (20 victims) were targets of anti-physical disability bias. (Based on Table 1.)

By Offense Category

A breakdown of the data for the 9,222 hate crime victims in 2002 showed that 64.6 percent (5,960) were victims of crimes against persons, 34.8 percent (3,213 victims) were targets of crimes against property, and 0.5 percent (49) were victims of crimes against society. (Based on Table 2.)

An analysis of the 5,960 victims of hate crimes against persons and their respective offense types revealed that 52.1 percent were victims of intimidation, 30.1 percent were victims of simple assault, 17.4 percent were victims of aggravated assault, 0.2 percent were victims of murder, and 0.1 percent were victims of forcible rape. Victims of other offense types accounted for 0.2 percent of the victim total of crimes against persons. (Based on Table 2.)

percent) were victims of destruction/damage/vandalism. Victims of robbery comprised 5.6 percent of the victim count for the crimes against property classification; burglary, 5.1 percent; larceny-theft, 4.9 percent; arson, 1.5 percent; and motor vehicle theft accounted for 0.3 percent. Victims of other offense types made up 0.5 percent of victims of crimes against property. (Based on Table 2.)

By Victim Type

Among the 2,823 hate crime offenses against property, a distribution of victim types showed that 53.8 percent of the offenses were directed at individuals, 10.0 percent at business or financial institutions, 6.7 percent at religious organizations, 6.0 percent at government, and 6.0 percent at society/public. Other, unknown, and multiple victim types accounted for 17.5 percent. (Based on Table 6.)

Offenders

As defined by the UCR hate crime program, the term known offender does not imply that the suspect's identity is known but that an attribute of the suspect is identified, which distinguishes him or her from an unknown offender. On the Hate Crime Incident Report form, reporting agencies can specify the number of offenders and, when possible, the offender's apparent race as the identifying attribute(s).

In 2002, law enforcement agencies reported a total of 7,314 known offenders associated with 7,462 bias-motivated incidents. (See Table 1.) Of the known offenders, 61.8 percent were white, 21.8 percent were black, 1.2 percent were Asian or Pacific Islander, and 0.6 percent were American Indian or Alaskan Native. Groups of individuals representing various races accounted for 4.9 percent of all known offenders. The remaining 9.8 percent of offenders were of unknown races. (Based on Table 9.)

By crime category, 6,090 known offenders committed 5,960 hate crime offenses against persons. Of those offenders, 40.0 percent committed the offense of simple assault, 34.8 percent committed intimidation, and 24.6 percent committed aggravated assault. Data for 1,423 known offenders of the 2,823 hate crime offenses against property indicated that 65.1 percent of the offenders committed destruction/damage/vandalism, and 18.9 percent committed robbery. Sixty-one known offenders were responsible for the 49 crimes against society. (Based on Table 2.)

Location

A review of the data by location showed that 29.5 percent of all reported hate crime incidents occurred at homes or residences. The review also showed highways, roads, alleys, or streets as the location for another 20.0 percent of the reported incidents. More than 10 percent (10.6) of hate crime incidents took place at schools and colleges, and 6.2 percent happened in parking lots or garages. The location was unknown or unspecified for 12.3 percent of incidents. The remaining incidents, 21.6 percent, took place in a variety of locations. (See Table 10.)

A breakdown of bias-motivated incidents by location indicated that 30.0 percent of the 3,642 racially-motivated hate crime incidents occurred at residences or homes; 23.5 percent happened on a highway, road, alley, or street; and 11.0 percent took place at schools or colleges. (Based on Table 10.)

Of the 1,426 incidents where a religious bias was the motivation, 26.2 percent took place at residences or homes; 16.9 percent at churches, synagogues, or temples; and 10.4 percent at schools or colleges. (Based on Table 10.)

Incidents associated with a sexual-orientation bias (1,244) most often took place at homes or residences—30.8 percent; 24.8 percent took place on a highway, road, alley, or street; and 13.4 percent occurred at schools or colleges. (Based on Table 10.)

Approximately 30 percent (30.7) of the 1,102 incidents motivated by an ethnicity or national origin bias occurred at residences or homes, and 18.1 percent happened on a highway, road, alley, or street. A school or college was the setting for 6.0 percent of these incidents. (Based on Table 10.)

Of the 45 incidents involving a disability bias, 20.0 percent occurred at homes or residences; and 20.0 percent took place on a highway, road, alley, or street. Schools and colleges accounted for another 11.1 percent. (Based on Table 10.)

A more complete breakdown of the locations associated with bias motivated incidents is published in Table 10.

³A multiple-bias incident occurs only when two or more offense types are committed in a single incident. In a situation where there is more than one offense type, the agency can indicate a different bias for each offense. In the case of a single offense type, only one bias can be indicated.

Crimes against society⁴	49	49	49	61

¹The actual number of incidents is 7,462. However, the column figures will not add to the total because incidents may include more than one offense type, and these are counted in each appropriate offense type category.

²The term victim may refer to a person, business, institution, or society as a whole.

³The term known offender does not imply that the identity of the suspect is known, but only that an attribute of the suspect is identified, which distinguishes him/her from an unknown offender. The actual number of known offenders is 7,314. However, the column figures will not add to the total because some offenders are responsible for more than one offense type, and they are, therefore, counted more than once in this table.

⁴Includes additional offenses collected in NIBRS.

Section II—Jurisdictional Hate Crime Statistics, 2002

During 2002, 12,073 agencies provided 1 to 12 months of hate crime data to the national Uniform Crime Reporting Program. Of those agencies, 15.5 percent (1,868 agencies) reported a total of 7,462 incidents. The remaining 84.5 percent of agencies indicated that no instances of hate crimes occurred within their jurisdiction.

The data presented in Section II of this report furnish state and agency breakdowns of bias-motivated offenses. Information contained in Table 12 furnishes state totals for the number of participating agencies, the population represented, the number of agencies submitting hate crime incidents, and the number of incidents reported. Table 13 provides data from those agencies that submitted one or more hate crime incidents, and Table 14 shows those agencies that submitted reports indicating that no instances of hate crimes occurred. The data in Tables 13 and 14 are presented alphabetically by state with each state subdivided by agency type, i.e., cities, universities and colleges, suburban counties, rural counties, state police agencies, and other agencies. The data published for universities and colleges represent reported crime from only those individual university/college law enforcement agencies that contributed to the UCR Program; the tables do not include educational institutions whose hate crime data were reported through the local law enforcement agency. Both tables also provide the number of quarters for which each agency contributed hate crime data to the UCR Program. (See Methodology.)
